RUSHVILLE DID HERSELF PROUD

Brookville Relief Fund Reaches Magnificent Sum of $1,818.04 in Little More Than Week.

CONCERT PROCEEDS HELPED

The $141 Added by Bedroom Suit Raffle Materially Aided in Boosting the Total.

The Brookville relief fund reached the magnificent total of $1,818.04.

It closed today. No more contributions of money, bedclothing, furniture or wearing apparel will be received. Rushville did herself proud, as much as her share at any rate.

The fund was boosted today by reason of the home talent concert and bedroom suit raffle proceeds, in addition to a number of individual and club contributions that were not expected. The additional $5.50 by Tri Kappa was from an exchange held last Saturday.

Since $141 was realized off the bedroom suit raffle, it is believed that much more that is of real benefit for the Brookville sufferers will result than if the bedroom outfit had been sent to Brookville. It is of much more value than those which will be given to people who lost their homes and it advocated here that the gift of such a valuable suit would have been a discrimination that would have been felt.

The raffle will take place this evening at Betker's store at seven-thirty o'clock. Lewis W. Henry was in charge of this contest and sold many of the tickets.

George C. Wyatt & Company is busily engaged in gathering up furniture that has been donated to the Brookville people. Mr. Wyatt and sons kindly consented to call for the furniture and crate it up ready for shipment to Brookville. The L. & C. will haul it free to Connersville and Brookville will prepare for its conveyance from there. No more donations of any sort will be received as the fund has been closed.

Since there is absolutely no need for wearing apparel at Brookville, all that was contributed to the fund is being shipped to Lawrenceburg where there are many people in dire need. Several calls have been made here for help. It was never asked that anything but bedclothing be sent for Brookville, but there were many pieces of good wearing apparel contributed. The American Express Company is taking the clothing free of charge to Lawrenceburg.

WHY RECALL IT?

Muncie Press: Newspapers in Indianapolis objecting to men appointed on the public utilities commission who were formerly railroad attorneys, ought to remember that they are touting Jno. W. Kern as the leader of the "progressive" forces in the United States senate. John was the attorney of the New York Central in Indiana for years prior to his election, while Governor Marshall, one of our principal foes of plutocracy in public life, served a twenty years apprenticeship as local counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad.

A famine in stamped envelopes has nearly resulted in this locality from the enforced idleness of the United States factory at Dayton, which the flood put out of business for a time. The plant is working again, and an extra force of men is on the job, trying to relieve the congestion incident to the delay. As it is orders for stamped envelopes are sure to be about two weeks behind for a while. The concern is doing its best to overcome the loss in time it suffered.

MARY RICHEY SUCCUMBS

Milroy Woman Dies After Second Stroke of Paralysis.

Mrs. Mary Richey, age fifty-five years, died at her home in Milroy yesterday afternoon about four o'clock of a complication of diseases. She had been very sick for several weeks and no hopes were held out for her recovery. She suffered a second stroke of paralysis early last week. Four children survive: Mrs. Sylvester Miller, Mrs. Otis Smith and Harry Richey of Milroy and B. J. Richey living south of Milroy. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at ten o'clock and burial will take place in Milroy cemetery.

PUPILS HERE GET LIVING POPPIES

Plants Are Sent to Local School From California—Also Assortment of Seeds.

INTRODUCING THEM HERE

Prof. O. L. Raber, instructor in science of the local high school has received an assortment of living poppy plants and 70 packages of the poppy seeds to be distributed among the Botany students of the high school. The plants were sent from Sacramento, California for the purpose of getting them introduced into this part of the United States and also incidentally to advertise the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915. The yellow poppy is grown almost exclusively in California and is one of the most beautiful flowers in the west; however if the plant will grow in this climate they will be seen here this summer.

FIRST C. H. & D. CASE IS CONTINUED

Trial of Division Superintendent, Resulting From Irvington Wreck, is Postponed Today.

WILL BE ABLE TO MAKE CASE

The trial of R. B. White, division superintendent of the C. H. & D. railroad, accused of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the C. H. & D. wreck in Irvington, November 13, 1912, which cost sixteen lives, will not be started to day as had been planned says the Indianapolis Star. Frank P. Baker, prosecuting attorney, has agreed to a continuance in the case. It is generally conceded that the state will have difficulty making a case against the indicted officials. The indictment is based on the theory that the company failed to obey the law pertaining to the installation of a block signal system. After the indictment was returned, it was found that the company received an extension of time beyond the date of the wreck from the railroad commission.

SUES FOR DIVORCE.

Newcastle Star: Mrs. Hettie Perry of Knightstown yesterday entered suit in the circuit court against her husband, Clyde Perry, for divorce. The complaint charges failure to provide and also recites that the defendant served a term in the state prison for larceny. The Perrys were married July 13, 1909, and separated December 16, 1911.

RULES FOR JAIL TO BE ADOPTED

Judge Megee Will Make Court Order For Regulations Proposed by Charity Board.

ABOUT SAME AS NOW IN FORCE

Prisoners Must Comply or Face Court on Contempt Charge—

May be Hard on Them.

Judge Megee has received a copy of the rules and regulations formulated and prescribed by the State Board of Charities for the care and management of county jails and for the control of prisoners in them. Judge Megee will adopt the set of rules and will make it an order of court. The rules as they will be adopted are practically the same as now in force at the jail.

The rules afford a protection to the sheriff in that they specify what the prisoners shall and shall not do, and a failure of any one not to comply with all the rules may be taken as a contempt of court, and the offender taken to court. If it is proven that he is guilty of an infringement and thus of contempt of court and may be sent to the penal farm, which was created by an act of the last legislature.

Two sets of jail rules were sent to the court here. The shorter of the two is the one adopted by the court. The longer set was impractical for the jail here as a matron would have to be maintained and the sheriff would have to give most of his time to the jail and would have very little time for office work. The rules that will be adopted are as follows:

1. Every person shall bathe when admitted, and weekly thereafter.

2. Marking, defacing or littering the cells, walls or corridors, or injuring or destroying the jail property is prohibited.

3. Spitting on floors, walls, or iron works, is prohibited.

4. Prisoners shall make their own beds, keep clean their cells, and perform such duties in taking care of the jail and keeping it clean and in order as may be assigned to them.

5. Meals shall be served the prisoners at suitable and regular hours, three times a day.

6. The sheriff shall inspect the jail at least once every day and see that it is kept clean and sanitary.

7. There shall be complete sex separation. Prisoners shall be classified and separated so far as the jail will permit.

8. No tramps or other persons shall be classified and separated so far as the jail will permit.

9. No tramps or other persons shall be received without due process of law.

WILL START WORK AT ONCE

Paving Firm Will Ship Equipment From Seymour Friday.

DeGolyer and company, the construction firm that has the contract for the paving of Perkins street, will ship their equipment from Seymour Friday and expect to begin work within a week. Two members of the firm were here yesterday and left this afternoon for Seymour to make arrangements for shipping the outfit here. The street is to be paved from the corner of Second street to Sixth and Sixth out to the Ft. Wayne road. The contractors hope to have the work completed by September 1.

PRELIMINARY FRIDAY NIGHT

Contest Will be Held to Determine Who Shall Represent High School in State Oratorical.

SIX WILL TRY FOR THE HONOR

Rushville, Voted Out of the Association, Has "Blood in its Eyes"

For Last Chance.

The oratorical contest to select the student who will represent the Rushville high school in the State high school oratorical contest, to be held at Lebanon, May 9th, will take place at the Graham building, Friday night, at eight o'clock. Six will try for the honor.

This will be the last opportunity for the Rushville high school to participate in the oratorical association of which it has been a member for several years. At the last meeting of the representatives of the schools in the organization Rushville was voted out because of its location in respect to the other cities. They are all in the western part of Indiana and it is inconvenient for Rushville students to make the annual trip to the oratorical, and it is equally inconvenient for the other schools to come here for the meeting.

The rules afford a protection to the sheriff in that they specify what the prisoners shall and shall not do, and a failure of any one not to comply with all the rules may be taken as a contempt of court, and the offender taken to court. If it is proven that he is guilty of an infringement and thus of contempt of court and may be sent to the penal farm, which was created by an act of the last legislature.

TIME EXPIRES FIRST OF MAY

People Are Urged to File Their Mortgage Exemptions.

The time for filing mortgage exemptions expires the first day of next month and people are urged to take advantage of the law at once so as to avoid the rush during the last few days. A. R. Holden, county auditor, says that people have been unusually slow this year filing their exemptions. At this time last year many more had taken advantage of the exemption law than have up to this time.

THIMBLE CLUB ADDS BIG SUM

Benefit Home Talent Concert Under its Auspices Realizes $122.55 For Relief Fund.

MORE THAN 500 PEOPLE THERE

Jess Pugh and Company of Rushville Artists Entertain Guests of Club Program.

The home talent concert given at the Main Street Christian church last night under the auspices of the Thimble club netted $122.55 for the Brookville relief fund, thanks to Jess Pugh and a company of local entertainers who gave the audience of more than five hundred people its money's worth, and lots more.

A total of $122.55 was realized from the sale of tickets and the door receipts. The only expense of the entertainment was one dollar which was paid to the janitor of the church. Everything else was donated. Dr. W. H. Smith presented the club with $5 at the door.

Out of gratitude for their assistance, the members of the Thimble club entertained the talent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Watson after the concert. The Thimble club ladies were hostesses and no part of the proceeds from the concert were expended in defraying the expenses of the affair. A buffet luncheon was served and a thoroughly enjoyable hour was spent together. The guests were entertained by numbers on the Victrola in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Watson.

The Thimble club was formed in Rushville seventeen years ago, and is probably the oldest club in the city. No new members have been added since the original organization. The members to whom the audience last night was indebted for the entertaining and to whom Brookville people are indebted for the magnificent sum raised for the benefit are: Mrs. Owen Kincaid, Mrs. F. G. Hackleman, Mrs. Fred B. Johnson, Mrs. James E. Watson, Mrs. Lewis M. Sexton, Mrs. Will Jay, Mrs. Ab Denning, Mrs. J. P. Fraze, Mrs. Harrie Jones, Mrs. Harriet Plough, Mrs. Will M. Bliss, Mrs. Ora Wilson of Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. Lizzie Burt of New York.

The concert exemplified once more the merit of the talent that is to be found in Rushville. The program could not be carried out in full as printed because B. F. Miller was un-

INTENDS TO BUY A BIBLE; GETS DRUNK

M. L. Campbell of Near Homer Has Good Intentions When he Goes to Shelbyville.

BUT OH! THE AWFUL RESULT

Morton Lewis Campbell, employed on the Gosnold farm near Homer, came to this city Saturday evening for a most laudable purpose—to buy a Bible for his daughter, says the Shelbyville. Had he limited his purchases to the Holy Book alone it is not likely his name would have got into print, but unfortunately for the Rush county man he found too many of his friends in this city and wishing to show them how big a heart he had he began spending his savings quite freely for wet goods. As a result he was out on the streets in his shirt sleeves by eight-thirty o'clock looking for trouble or satisfaction, he didn't care which. He found the former in the persons of Police Sergeant George Tolen and Officer Dillard Moore, who showed him the way to jail.

Sunday evening Campbell paid a fine and costs of $9.30 in the court of Justice Pryor and was released to return to his family.

RICHTER FINED.

William Richter, proprietor of a grocery in West Third street, was fined one dollar and costs by Squire Kratzer for assault and battery on the son of A. C. Cooper. Mr. Cooper had Richter arrested and the case was heard late yesterday afternoon.

You, sir, cannot get away from the "sprucing-up" suggestions of spring—no matter how indifferent you may be to the question of dress at other seasons of the year. This is a good time to visit the stores that cater to men.

Look over the new things in scarfs, shirts, waistcoats. What about hats and canes and umbrellas? And there is always the question of a new suit or a light overcoat.

HUMILIATION OF CHINA LAID TO PEOPLE'S LACK OF LOYALTY

Writer Asserts Orientals Have Not Proper Spirit of Nationalism.

Population of 400,000,000 Contrasted as Helpless Against Japan.

An interesting review of political and social conditions in China is given in a letter published by the Chicago Tribune. The writer attributes China's humiliating position among the nations to the lack of loyalty and active patriotism on the part of her people.

The review in part is as follows:

To any one considering the situation in the far east the contrast between the position of Japan and that of China must appear startling.

Japan, a nation of 50,000,000 people, occupying territory about the size of the state of Montana and possessing no great resources, is a great power, to which the other great powers send ambassadors. Japan is sought as an ally, and its desires are most carefully considered.

China is nation of over 400,000,000, occupying a territory a third greater than that of the United States and, rich in resources, is politically a minor power and as such has ministers accredited to it by the great powers. It is not desired as an ally by anybody. Far from its wishes being considered, it is at present in grave danger of losing considerable of its territory if not of being entirely divided.

Japan Adds to Territory.

Japan, far from being threatened with the alienation of any of its original territory, has added Formosa, the Pescadores, Korea, half of Sakhalin and practically lower Manchuria, including the Taiotung peninsula. In addition, it is accused, and not without justice, of having its eye on inner Mongolia and Fukien, to say nothing of American possessions in and around the Pacific ocean.

China finds itself face to face with Russia and Japan, which, allied since Mr. Knox's disastrous attempt to neutralize the Manchurian railways, have practically swallowed Manchuria and are now turning their attention to Mongolia.

To make matters worse, the news has just leaked out of a recently signed treaty between Great Britain and Russia by which they recognize Russian and British suzerainty in outer Mongolia and Tibet respectively and by which they promise each other mutual assistance should China or any other power endeavor to prevent them from developing these two provinces for their own interests.

Japs Brook No Interference.

No nations attempt to interfere with the internal affairs of Japan.

All nations are constantly interfering with the internal affairs of China. Even its attempts to suppress the national vice of opium smoking are being seriously hindered by Great Britain's desire to prevent financial loss to bankers and merchants who are engaged in this trade.

Interference with Japanese subjects residing abroad brings a threat of war which is heeded by the nation concerned. The San Francisco school incident is a good example.

Chinese are excluded from this country and frequently badly treated. Mexico has murdered numbers of them. In the Dutch East Indies they have been badly abused. None of these conditions has been remedied from the Chinaman's point of view.

Why must China suffer all this, not only at the hands of the white powers, but also at those of Japan, which but a short half century ago was itself being humiliated?

Has Resources and People.

It has great resources. It has 400,000,000 of people. They are intelligent. They have unsurpassed endurance. They are physically larger and stronger than the Japanese. They have a long military history and have in the past shown themselves to be excellent soldiers.

The answer is to be found in the

KAISER WILHELM MAKES AMENDS TO HIS TENANT.

Confers Order on and Gives Money to Man He Assailed.

Herr Sohst, the tenant farmer on the kaiser's estate at Cadinen, Germany, whom his majesty publicly said, he had been compelled to throw out as "worthless and incompetent," has received the "amende honorable" from the emperor.

It is officially announced that the kaiser has bestowed the Prussian Order of the Crown of the Fourth Class on Herr Sohst on the conclusion of negotiations which have ended a five years' dispute between them. In addition the kaiser has agreed to pay to Sohst an indemnity of $30,000. In the notice to quit which Sohst refused to accept last December the emperor offered only $2,000.

Sohst, who by the verdict on Feb. 28 in the third suit that he won against the emperor became entitled to remain another five years on the kaiser's estate, has now surrendered his rights and given up his lease.

fact that in Japan the military spirit, having been kept alive and the soldiers remaining on top having been able to inculcate the whole nation with the military virtues of loyalty, discipline and sense of duty, when they realized the necessity for adopting western methods they had only to get western arms and learn to use them.

In China the military spirit had gradually died out. The ruling classes lost it first. The soldier dropped steadily down the scale until finally he was at the bottom of it. To such an extent was this carried that for all practical purposes the warrior class had ceased to exist. To be a soldier was a thing of reproach.

Code of Chivalry Unknown.

Such a thing as a code of chivalry, similar to the bushido of Japan, was unknown. The dominant idea was not that when evils were inflicted on the nation they were to be resisted and every effort made to overcome them, but that they were to be expected and must be borne or, at the most, resisted passively.

Thus it was that humiliation after humiliation taught the Chinese nothing. They hated the foreigner and wanted to get rid of him. Periodic and useless outbreaks against missionaries and efforts such as that made by the Boxers occurred.

From time to time men in high positions saw the necessity for adopting European methods. They, however, apparently saw no further than the need for foreign arms and training.

They did not understand that back of these and more important was the military spirit. This lack of understanding, coupled too often with the presence among the troops of dishonest officers, led to such fiascoes both on land and sea as those of the Chino-Japanese war.

Planned Reorganization of Army.

In 1905 a very comprehensive modern scheme was drawn up for the organization of the army. The condition of the soldier was bettered to such an extent that he soon stood far higher in the social scale than he had for some centuries.

By the time the revolution broke out the imperial troops in the north amounted to more than 200,000 men with nearly 900 guns. Their training was good, but the revolution showed the proper spirit to be lacking. The very best of the troops mutinied, not because of sympathy with the revolution, but because of the chance to loot.

The Young China party, which was responsible for the revolution, chafes under the humiliations inflicted on China and even calls for war to prevent their continuation. The leaders know, however, that in spite of its numbers, its size and of its resources China is helpless. The necessary spirit of nationality and military virtue have been lacking.

National Spirit Lacking.

The population always has been united in theocratic beliefs, in love of family life and family system, in its ethics, customs, precedents, symbols and dress. In spite of this, religiousism has prevailed to such an extent that it virtually has excluded all spirit of nationalism.

The revolution has apparently awakened both the military spirit and the spirit of nationality. The peace loving Chinese are commencing to realize that national integrity and sovereignty rest on military force.

What they have not realized is that the qualities requisite for military success cannot be put aside and donned again like a garment; that these qualities are the results of generations of patient, careful and persistent educational effort; that as time goes on war demands a higher and higher training and moral standard on the part of those who engage in it.

A FILIPINO DELEGATE BECOMES AN IRISHMAN.

Tammany Hall Chief Makes "Casey" Out of Manuel Quezon.

From the faroff Philippines comes word of a mistake which has made Tammany Hall famous there. Manuel Quezon, the Philippine delegate to the United States, was asked on his last return to the islands how he had been received in this country. Mr. Quezon, who pronounces his name "Ka-zon," said he had been welcome with the utmost hospitality.

"I went to New York," said Mr. Quezon, "and was there introduced to Mr. Charles Murphy, the grand sachem of Tammany Hall. Mr. Murphy made a slight mistake in my name and thought it was Casey. He immediately invited me to accept honorary membership in Tammany Hall, as he said my forebears must have come from the aid. So by the time I return to the United States I expect to find that I am a member of Tammany Hall—a brave, I believe they call it."

BIG SENSATION IN CIENFUEGOS

Rival of the Assassinated Mayor Is Slain.

TROOPS ORDERED TO SCENE

Excitement Following the Recent Assassination of the Mayor of Cuban Town Is Heightened by Killing of Murdered Executive's Chief Political Rival, and Further Reprisals of a Bloody Nature Are Feared.

Havana, April 15.—In reprisal for the recent assassination of Señor Menéndez, the conservative mayor of that place, José Fernández, the defeated liberal candidate for mayor of Cienfuegos, was killed. Special policeman Eustaquio Ordóñez, who was very fond of Mayor Menéndez, entered a cafe where Fernández was seated with some friends, and said: "I am going to kill you, and want to do it like a man."

Ordóñez began shooting at once and emptied his revolver before anyone could interfere. Fernández, who had stood up when Ordóñez began firing, fell on a table and pulled it over with him when he fell to the floor. Fernández died two hours later from a bullet wound in his head.

The police rushed in and arrested Ordóñez, who made no resistance. There is great excitement in Cienfuegos over the murder. The secretary of government has ordered all the detachments of rurales in Santa Clara province to concentrate immediately at Cienfuegos, where a serious outbreak is feared.

MADE DEFINITE DIVISION

Farm Against Town the Alignment in Tariff Caucus.

Washington, April 15.—City was aligned against country when the Democratic members in caucus resumed consideration of the Underwood tariff bill.

"The fellows from the city," as they were characterized by Representative Shackleford of Missouri turned their bats on the agricultural schedule, which imposes small protective rates on nearly all the products of the farm. The city members expressed the belief that in order to help the "market basket," all farm and food products should be put on the free list. They urged this view when the bill was before the committee on ways and means and in clarion tones reiterated it in caucus. They declared that as an evidence of good faith the Democratic party ought to try free trade in food products in an effort to reduce the cost of living.

NOT A UNIVERSAL STRIKE

Brussels Little Affected by Protest of Socialists.

Brussels, April 15.—The first day of the strike for universal manhood suffrage passed off very peacefully. Up to the present hour the strike has been in no way universal. Both parties claim to be entirely satisfied with the situation. The clerical newspapers say the strike has been a complete fiasco, while the Socialist organs say it has been a magnificent triumph.

Estimates as to the number of those on strike are very contradictory, but perhaps 200,000 is near the mark. Brussels has been so little affected by the strike that it is difficult to believe that anything of the kind is on. All the public services are running as usual.

ANNIVERSARY OF DISASTER

Last Day on Which Claims Against Titanic's Owners May Be Filed.

New York, April 15.—Today, the first anniversary of the sinking of the steamship Titanic, is the last day on which claims against the Oceanic Steamship company, owners of the ill-fated ship, can be filed in the district court for loss of life and property. Damages in excess of $10,000,000 already have been requested, the claimants numbering ninety-seven, and more may be added today. The amount in which the Oceanic Steamship company is liable will be announced in a decision to be handed down this week by the United States district court.

George M. Shippy, former police chief of Chicago, is dead after a long illness of softening of the brain.

LABOR CHARGES WITHOUT BASIS

Public Service Payroll Was Grossly Padded.

HOW A STATE WAS LOOTED

Disclosures Relating to the Work of Reconstructing Burned Portion of New York State Capitol Reveal the Most Shameless and Amazing Plundering of the People Through Glaring Dereliction of Public Duty.

Albany, N. Y., April 15.—In a report made to the governor, State Auditor Hennessy, upon whose recommendation contracts for the reconstruction of the burned portion of the state capitol were cancelled last week, estimates the cost of restoring the building at well over $3,000,000. Altered specifications, padded payrolls, dereliction of duty and complete surrender of authority on the part of the former state architect, Herman W. Hoefer, are ascribed as the cause of this enormous expense. It was originally estimated that the capitol could be restored to the condition it was in before the fire for $2,000,000.

State Auditor Hennessy reported to the governor that the former state architect had two companies on percentage contracts wiring the capitol. He said an examination of the bills of these two companies indicates that the charges for labor were entirely out of proportion to the cost of material, an analysis of the bills showing that many of the men drawing per diem wages had only a payroll connection with the work. The report points out that the payrolls were padded not only as to actual time worked, but as to the number of men at work.

He says the payroll for electrical work showed that some of the men worked twenty hours a day for twenty-seven consecutive days, and that one man who was placed on the job at the personal request of the state architect worked twenty-four hours a day for weeks, according to the pay he received.

"The supervising auditor and the architect, together with the superintendent of construction, have several times investigated the work done by the contractors," the report says, "and have found as many as four men together doing nothing. And it was found that there is a regular alarm signal on each floor when anybody comes along who may be suspected of a desire to learn whether the men are working."

CONDITION OF THE POPE

Pontiff's Chief Physician Points to Probability of Recovery.

Rome, April 15.—The pope's condition is unchanged. His temperature is steady and it is stated that it is not likely to increase, as the measures to allay the fever have been efficient. Prof. Marchiafava says that if the pontiff's condition does not change within four or five days it is probable that he will recover. He promised to warn the pope's nephew when it would be time to administer the last sacrament. The arrangements at the vatican have not been changed. Prof. Marchiafava said: "I now really trust that the pope's illness will have a favorable solution if it is possible to induce the patient to take proper care of himself."

Optimists seem to think that they find corroboration of this in the fact that the tombstone of the Pope Sylvester II. in the basilica of St. John of Lateran is still dry. The marble slab on the tomb which bears a prophetic epitaph is reputed to be always bedewed when a pope is dying. It is declared that this has never failed for ten centuries to give a premonition of the death of the 116 pontiffs who have passed away in that period. The phenomenon occurred as usual on the day that Pope Leo XIII. died. From that day to this it has been dry.

HAIRPIN BOMB DISCOVERED

Suffragettes Evidently Had Designs on Bank of England.

London, April 15.—The suffragettes made an abortive attempt to blow up the Bank of England with a bomb. It was reported at first that the bomb was a very dangerous one and that if it had exploded it would have wrecked the bank, caused millions of dollars loss and probably killed or injured many persons.

Investigation by the police later showed that the bomb was not a very alarming affair. It consisted of a pint milk can filled with two ounces of gunpowder and a quantity of hairpins. The clockwork attached to the detonator was not working and the bomb could not have done much harm to the bank if it had exploded, but passersby might have been injured.

Death of Carl Hagenbeck.

Hamburg, April 15.—Carl Hagenbeck, the animal collector, known the world over, is dead here. He was born in 1844. His father, who had commenced the animal business in 1848 with a few seals and a polar bear brought to Hamburg by a whaler, transferred the business to him when he was twenty-one years old.

ACTIVE AID OF THE RED CROSS SOCIETY

Systematic Work Begun In Ohio Bottoms.

Mt. Vernon, Ind., April 15.—Work of partly rehabilitating farmers who lost all of their possessions during the high water in the Wabash and Ohio bottoms has been systematically begun by the National Red Cross society, which has established headquarters in this city. With the deposit of a check for $7,000 given Senator Curtis by Governor Ralston, the arrival of another car of government supplies and the delivery of 100,000 government rations by the United States steamer Cherokee the station was amply provided for taking care of 5,000 refugees.

Jacob Cronbach, chairman of the relief committee, is in receipt of a draft for $100 from Governor McCreary of Kentucky to provide for Kentucky sufferers.

The body of a white woman about sixty years old was found floating in the river. There were no marks of identification.

Says $200,000 Is Needed.

Evansville, Ind., April 15.—Captain

W. K. Naylor, U. S. A., on flood relief

here for two weeks, has left for Memphis, Tenn., to assist Major Normoyle in relief work on the lower Mississippi. Army and navy rations have been turned over to Mayor Hellman for disposition. It is estimated that the government has distributed $30,000 in food from Evansville exclusive of the

as far as they can, or by mail order. If they want a yeast cake or a spool of thread, they buy it at home, sometimes even demanding delivery. But if they have a dress or a table to buy, something in which there is some margin of profit, the order goes away.

Isn't it a mighty convenient thing to have the home stores so that, when you want the yeast cake or spool of thread or a thousand other things, you can get them quick?

If the policy of buying away from home should ever become general, many lines of goods now kept here could not be kept. The public would suffer a distinct inconvenience, and the first ones to kick would be those who now buy away from home.

On the contrary, if everyone bought everything possible at home, many lines of goods could be improved, and new ones added, thus making it possible to trade with the least expenditure of time.

Texas farmers want to know why they get only 13 per cent of the retail prices of their products. Considering that the grocer has to send a team out to deliver a five cent cabbage head, the farmers ought to be satisfied to get anything at all.

The senatorial election amendment having passed, it would seem necessary to provide for the needs of poor but deserving state legislators in some other way.

They are talking of a new hotel at Cornish, N. H., where President Wilson will spend his summers. Mighty handy when Mr. Wilson's cook gives notice.

As there is now an income tax to provide all needed funds, it is hoped that no villages are hanging back about asking for their marble post-offices.

Mr. Wilson says the president should be a human being, but the office seekers say if he was, he would manage to find them some kind of a job.

The Los Angeles municipal newspaper has had to suspend. Probably the reason is that it didn't tell people what their neighbors were doing.

It looks as if there would be a large number of citizens whose income under the new tax law would be found to be $3,999.99.

President Wilson may have gone in to talk to congress, but he takes no chances of that kind with the D. A. T.-ers convention.

A number of millionaires' sons are going into farming this year, but probably it is mostly the roll top desk kind of agriculture.

The Suffragettes seem to think John Bull is going to keep perfectly still while his wife persistently jabs a hat pin into him.

The popular way to observe Arbor day in some districts is to burn over the young tree growth in the back pasture.

The powers are still afraid to play their ace of trumps against Monte negro's two-spot of spades.

Mr. Wilson threw out the first ball at the Washington grounds. Was he lame next day?

able to sing on account of a severe case of laryngitis and Hale Pearsey was not able to appear due to illness. The inability of Mr. Miller to sing made the number of the Wi-hub quartet impossible.

Some of the numbers were a repetition of parts of the entertainment given at the Masonic temple last Friday night, but they were as highly appreciated as if they had never been heard before.

The programs announced there would be no encores on account of the length. The audience obeyed instructions faithfully and was not too insistent until Jess Pugh gave his last reading. It was the climax of the evening. The announcement that there would be no encores was forgotten. The audience applauded and would not accept excuses. It demanded a return. Mr. Pugh repeated the celebrated "mule story" which he has been asked to do often since he first gave it here.

The program was opened with an organ voluntary, "Processional," from "The Queen of Sheba," by Miss Jessie Kitchen, and was followed by a prayer by the Rev. C. M. Yocum of the Christian church, who praised the spirit that animated the gathering.

The rendition of "Carmena," by Mrs. Carl F. Behler, and the Misses Hazel Lytle, Norma Smith, Georgia Wyatt and Helen Scott, with Merle Maupin as the accompanist, was enjoyed. The exhibition of Miss Cricket Tevis' ability to play a violin was a revelation, and the audience indicated its appreciation by merited applause. Mrs. Tevis was the accompanist.

The chorus of young girls including the Misses Katherine Guffin, Mary Louise Poe, Mary Louise Bliss, Lois Reeves, Helen Frazee, Katherine Wyatt, Dorothy Mulno, Esther Anderson, Dorothy Sparks and Margaret Ball sang "Apple Blossom Time in Normandy." Miss Norma Smith was the accompanist.

Mrs. Behler sang "Could I" in place of the solo that was to have been given by Hale Pearsey. Jess Pugh's reading was greeted by an outburst of applause. The next two numbers were a duet, "Whispering Hope," by Miss Scott and Mrs. Behler and a soprano solo by Miss Smith. Miss Lytle's humorous song "I'm Bringin' up the Family" was very popular. She was dressed in appropriate costume.

The Misses Georgia and Mary Louise Wyatt played a violin duet, "Barcarolle," and a quartet - Mrs. Behler and the Misses Scott, Smith and Wyatt sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Miss Morna Hickman of Spencer, Ind., a guest of Mrs. Owen Kincaid's, played a piano solo and the entertainment was closed with a reading by Jess Pugh which kept the crowd in an uproar.

Jess essayed the role of a graduate from a school of expression. He said he was often asked what school he had been graduated from and he invariably replied that he learned his in J. P. Frazee's lumber yard or at Davis Bros. delivery stable. He advised beginners to try being a stenographer and bank clerk for a start.

The graduate who he imitated was hindered by a habit of shifting his handkerchief from one hand to the other as he spoke. One night when he was to make his appearance, his friends filled his handkerchief with snuff and the results may be imagined. Jess soon had the audience sneezing with him. His efforts to ward off a paroxysm of sneezing, which was inevitable, were so ludicrous that the people in the audience were convulsed with laughter.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Doris.

"A young girl named Doris Scott?" The station-master looked somewhat sharply at the man he was addressing, and decided to give the direction asked.

"There is but one young girl in town of that name," he declared, "and she lives in that little house you see just beyond the works. But let me tell you, stranger," he went on with some precipitation—

But here he was called off, and Sweetwater lost the conclusion of his warning, if warning it was meant to be. This did not trouble the detective. He stood a moment, taking in the prospect; decided that the works and the works alone made the town, and started for the house which had been pointed out to him. His way lay through the chief business street, and greatly preoccupied by his errand, he gave but a passing glance to the rows on rows of workmen's dwellings stretching away to the left in seemingly endless perspective. Yet in that glance he certainly took in the fact that the sidewalks were blocked with people and wondered if it were a holiday. If so, it must be an enforced one, for the faces showed little joy. Possibly a strike was on. The anxiety he everywhere saw pictured on young faces and old, argued some trouble; but if the trouble was that, why were all heads turned indifferently from the works, and why were the works themselves in full blast?

These questions he may have asked himself and he may not. His attention was entirely centered on the house he saw before him and on the possible developments awaiting him there. Nothing else mattered. Briskly he stepped out along the sandy road, and after a turn or two which led him quite away from the works and its surrounding buildings, he came out upon the highway and this house.

It was a low and unpretentious one, and had but one distinguishing feature. The porch which hung well over the doorstep was unique in shape and gave an air of picturesqueness to an otherwise simple exterior; a picturesqueness which was much enhanced in its effort by the background of immeasurable forest, which united the foreground of this pleasing picture with the great chain of hills which held the works and town in its ample basin.

As he approached the doorstep, his mind involuntarily formed an anticipatory image of the child whose first stitches in embroidery were like a fairy's weaving to the strong man who worked in ore and possibly figured out bridges. That she would prove to be of the ancient type, common among working girls gifted with an imagination they have but scant opportunity to exercise, he had little doubt.

He was therefore greatly taken aback, when at his first step upon the porch, the door before him flew open and he beheld in the dark recess beyond a young woman of such bright and blooming beauty that he hardly noticed her expression of extreme anxiety, till she lifted her hand and laid an admonitory finger softly on her lip:

"Hush!" she whispered, with an earnestness which roused him from his absorption and restored him to the full meaning of this encounter. "There is sickness in the house and we are very anxious. Is your errand an important one? If not—" The faltering break in the fresh, young voice, the look she cast behind her into the darkened interior, were eloquent with the hope that he would recognize her impatience and pass on.

And so he might have done—so he would have done under all ordinary circumstances. But if this was Doris—and he did not doubt the fact after that first moment of startled surprise—how dare he forego this opportunity of settling the question which had brought him here.

With a slight stammer but otherwise giving no evidence of the effect made upon him by the passionate intensity with which she had urged this plea, he assured her that his errand was important, but one so quickly told that it would delay her but a moment. "But first," said he, with very natural caution, "let me make sure that it is to Miss Doris Scott I am speaking. My errand is to her and her only."

Without showing any surprise, perhaps too engrossed in her own thoughts to feel any, she answered with simple directness, "Yes, I am Doris Scott." Whereupon he became his most persuasive self, and pulling out a folded paper from his pocket, opened it and held it before her, with these words:

"Then will you be so good as to glance at this letter and tell me if the person whose initials you will find at more like the welcoming cry of meeting spirits. Was death to end this separation? Had he found the true O. B., only to behold another and final seal upon this closely folded mystery? In his fear of this possibility, he caught at Doris' hand as she was about to bound away, and eagerly asked:

"When was Mr. Brotherson taken ill? Tell me, I entreat you; the exact day and, if you can, the exact hour. More depends upon this than you can readily realize."

She wrenched her hand from his, panting with impatience and a vague alarm. But she answered him distinctly:

"On the twenty-fifth of last month, just an hour after he was made manager. He fell in a faint at the works."

The day—the very day of Miss Challenger's death!

"Had he heard—did you tell him then or afterwards what happened in New York on that very date?"

"No, no, we have not told him. It would have killed him—and may yet."

"Edith! Edith!" came again through the hush, a hush so deep that Sweetwater received the impression that the house was empty save for patient and nurse.

This discovery had its effect upon him. Why should he subject this young and loving girl to further pain? He had already learned more than he had expected to. The rest would come with time. But at the first intimation he gave of leaving, she lost her abstraction and turned with absolute eagerness towards him.

"One moment," said she. "You are a stranger and I do not know your name or your purpose here. But I cannot let you go without begging you not to mention to anyone in this town that Mr. Brotherson has any interest in the lady whose name we must not speak. Do not repeat that delirious cry you have heard or betray in any way our intense and fearful interest in this young lady's strange death. You have shown me a letter. Do not speak of that letter, I entreat you. Help us to retain our secret a little longer. Only the doctor and myself know what awaits Mr. Brotherson if he lives. I had to tell the doctor, but a doctor reveals nothing. Promise that you will not either, at least till the crisis is passed. It will help my father and it will help me; and we need all the help we can get."

Sweetwater allowed himself one minute of thought, then he earnestly replied:

"I will keep your secret for today, and longer, if possible."

"Thank you," she cried; "thank you. I thought I saw kindness in your face." And she again prepared to close the door.

But Sweetwater had one more question to ask. "Pardon me," said he, as he stepped down on the walk, "you say that this is a critical day with your patient. Is that why every one whom I have seen so far wears such a look of anxiety?"

"Yes, yes," she cried, giving him one other glimpse of her lovely, agitated face. "There's but one feeling in town today, but one hope, and, as I believe, but one prayer. That the man whom every one loves and every one trusts may live to run these works."

"Edith! Edith!" rose in ceaseless reiteration from within.

But it rang but faintly now in the ears of our detective. The door had fallen to, and Sweetwater's share in the anxieties of that household was over.

Slowly he moved away. He was in a confused yet elated condition of mind. Here was food for a thousand new thoughts and conjectures. An Orlando Brotherson and an Oswald Brotherson—relatives possibly, strangers possibly; but whether relatives or strangers, both given to signing their letters with their initials simply; and both the acknowledged admirers of the deceased Miss Challenger. But she had loved only one, and that one, Oswald. It was not difficult to recognize the object of this high-hearted woman's affections in this man whose struggle with the master-destroyer had awakened the solicitude of a whole town.

and hear," she explained, with another quick look behind her. "The doctor says that this is the critical day. He may become conscious any minute. If he should and were to hear that name, it might kill him."

"He!" Sweetwater perked up his ears. "Who do you mean by he?"

"Mr. Brotherson, my patient, he whose letter—" But here her impatience rose above every other consideration. Without attempting to finish her sentence, or yielding in the least to her curiosity or interest in this man's errand, she cried out with smothered intensity, "Go! go. I cannot stay another moment from his bedside."

But a thunderbolt could not have moved Sweetwater after the hearing of that name. "Mr. Brotherson!" he echoed. "Brotherson! Not Orlando?"

"No; no; his name is Oswald. He's the manager of these works. He's sick with typhoid. We are caring for him. If you belonged here you would know that much. There! that's his voice you hear. Go, if you have any mercy." And she began to push to the door.

But Sweetwater was impervious to all hint. With eager eyes straining into the shadowy depths just visible over her shoulder, he listened eagerly for the disjointed words now plainly to be heard in some near-by but unseen chamber.

"The second O. B.!" he inwardly declared. "And he's a Brotherson also, and—sick! Miss Scott," he whisperingly entreated as her hand fell in manifest despair from the door, "don't send me away yet. I've a question of the greatest importance to put you, and one minute more cannot make any difference to him. Listen! those cries are the cries of delirium; he cannot miss you; he's not even conscious."

"He's calling out in his sleep. He's calling her, just as he has called for the last two weeks. But he will wake conscious—or he will not wake at all."

The anguish trembling in that latter phrase would have attracted Sweetwater's earnest, if not pitiful, attention at any other time, but now he had ears only for the cry which at that moment came ringing shrilly from within—

"Edith! Edith!"

The living shouting for the dead! A heart still warm sending forth its longing to the pierced and pulseless one, hidden in a far-off tomb! To Sweetwater, who had seen Miss Challenger buried, this summons of distracted love came with weird force.

Then the present regained its sway. He heard her name again, and this time it sounded less like a call and

NATIONAL WAR STARTED AGAINST THE SOCIAL VICE

Score of Governors Enlist In Movement to Aid Working Girls.

Minimum Wage of $9 Weekly Is Demanded—New Laws on Way.

of workshops and factories giving detailed information as to wages, hours of employment, etc. Governor Cox has announced himself in favor of a minimum wage for women workers, but the bill as drawn does not provide for that feature.

A legislative committee to investigate the causes of white slavery in California and the effect of low wages in that relation has been under the chairmanship of Senator Gates of Los Angeles. Governor Hiram W. Johnson declared himself in favor of a national campaign for a minimum wage scale for women.

O'Hara Makes Statement.

Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara of Illinois recently made the following statement on his project in behalf of women:

"Our investigation into the causes and effect of social vice has shown conclusively that thousands of good girls are going wrong every year merely because they cannot live upon the wages paid them by employers."

"The initial step in the movement was taken when the Illinois state vice committee sent the following telegram to governors throughout the country:

"Are you in favor of a minimum wage for women? If so, what wage? Do you favor a state law or national law? Will you co-operate with Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara, chairman of the Illinois committee which is now investigating with an aim to enact legislation for women in an effort to stamp out white slavery?"

At least a score of state executives replied immediately, each assuring the Illinois investigators of hearty support and co-operation.

One of the first to reply was Governor Sulzer of New York, who said that New York would fall in line with any move aimed to eliminate traffic in women.

A message from Utah stated that the state legislature passed a bill fixing the minimum wage for women at 75 cents a day for the first year's service and after that $1.25 a day.

Governors Fall In Line.

All the governors expressed themselves emphatically in favor of a minimum wage, and many of them promised to send messages to that effect to their legislatures.

The Chicago merchants who testified before the committee held a secret meeting recently. The wages and conditions of girl employees were discussed for several hours. Since the investigation began the department store proprietors and others have made a careful study of the probable effects of establishing among themselves a minimum wage.

Girls in some stores have already asked higher wages, and it was learned that all were assured that they would be "taken care of" as soon as something definite had been decided on by the employers.

Massachusetts Plans Commission.

Governor Foss of Massachusetts addressed a letter to Lieutenant Governor O'Hara replying to his suggestions. He said:

"A resolution has already passed the senate of Massachusetts to provide for an investigation of the white slave traffic, so called, which if enacted will authorize the governor and council to appoint a commission of five persons with ample authority for the purpose."

That a working woman needs $8.90 a week except in domestic service to support herself in Milwaukee is the opinion expressed by the social service commission of the Milwaukee Federation of Charities.

The commission urges young women who expect to support themselves to keep away from the city unless they have an assured income of at least $9 a week, domestic service excepted.

A bill has been introduced in the Ohio legislature requiring all persons or corporations employing five or more women to report to the state inspector.

"The crisis is not confined to Illinois. It is national."

Effect of Low Wages.

"We were forced to realize that low wages were the real fundamental cause of white slavery and that to study the effect and ignore the cause would be to give to our investigation the appearance and reality of a farce. We refused to be parties to a farce. The people of Illinois, which took the lead in the final solution of black slavery, stand back of us loyally, and the work will go on regardless of whom or where it strikes."

"Our merchant princes and our kings of manufacture, the very people who have been the witnesses before our commission, admit that there must be a readjustment of wages. To a man they have entered into sincere and earnest co-operation with us."

"The crisis is not confined to Illinois. It is national."

Bring Suit Against Missing Jeffersonville Defaulter.

PFAU SPECULATED IN GRAIN

Secretary of Savings and Loan Association, Who Disappeared Leaving That Concern Stranded and His Father's Firm Bankrupt, Is Alleged to Have Been a Defaulter in a Large Sum in Margins on Wheat Deals.

Jeffersonville, Ind., April 15.—Henning Chambers & Co., a firm of Louisville brokers, have filed suit against George Pfau, jr., missing member of the bankrupt firm of George Pfau's Sons, of this city, to recover $12,615.54, alleged to have been advanced to the defendant while acting as his agent.

The suit shows that the Jeffersonville business man, who has been missing since February, speculated heavily, especially in grain, for a period of about two years prior to his disappearance. Henning Chambers & Co. set forth that they, as his agents, bought and sold large quantities of grain for him between the dates of April 1, 1911, and March 10, 1913, and advanced various sums at various times to Pfau to carry on these transactions, and that he is now indebted to them in the amount asked in the suit.

The plaintiff company asks that it be adjudged to have a lien on certain collateral left with it by the defendant. These securities consist of twenty-four certificates of indebtedness, for the aggregate sum of $18,500 of the German Savings and Loan association of Jeffersonville. Pfau was secretary of the association, which is now in the hands of a receiver.

GOING AFTER HOLDUP MEN

Gary Police Get Busy Following Suddenly Wave of Crime.

Gary, Ind., April 15.—Twenty-five arrests have been made by the police following a series of holdups. William Robertson, fifty years old, was shot in the breast while resisting three holdup men, but his wound is not serious. The men obtained $25 and a gold watch. William Biernerman and Alfred and George Currier were held up and robbed by three men who attacked them while they were walking along the Nickel Plate tracks on the edge of town. Two other attempted holdups were reported. Officers in an auto, at the point of revolvers, arrested Peter Fors, Floyd Sommers and Tom Martin, and later Joseph Steno was arrested. Following these arrests a general raid was made in the negro quarters and a number of suspects gathered in.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Rooney," suggested the judge. "If you're a good gambler you may care to take a chance. I'll give you ten years flat in Sing Sing as a second offender. You then will have no right to apply to the board of parole. Or if you like to gamble I'll sentence you to life as a fourth offender. After you have served three and a half years you may apply to the pardon authorities, and if your conduct has been good they may parole you on good behavior. Which do you prefer?"

Rooney hesitated for an instant.

"Well, judge," he concluded, "I've never been afraid to take a chance, and I'm certainly not going to get cold feet at my age. Gimme life."

And that's what he got.

POSTPONED MEET SET FOR APRIL 30

District Session of Red Men Will Be Held in Connersville—Grand Officers Coming.

THIS IS AN ANNUAL EVENT

The Red Men of this district will hold their annual district meeting in this city, April 30th, says the Connersville News. The event was set for an earlier date, but had to be postponed because of the flood. It is a yearly occasion of much importance to the members of the order, and is almost always largely attended. Arrangements are near completion for the program and the other features of the gathering here. The Great Sachem, Roy W. Emig, will preside over the assemblage. G. W. Cevergert, Great Senior Sagamore, will exemplify the unwritten work; James W. Lamkin, Great Junior Sagamore, will give instructions in team work, and Otto Wolf, Great Chief of Records, will discuss the financial condition, needs and prospect of the lodge. Other numbers not yet announced will augment the interest and instructiveness of the session.

HEATER BURSTS.

The Moscow schools were closed Friday on account of the water in the boiler getting too low and bursting one section of it. It seems that this janitor had put water in the boiler the night previous and had forgot to shut the cock and that during the night the steam had used most of the water up. Friday morning a good fire was started before it was noticed that there was no water. Not much damage was done as it is a sectional boiler and the bursted piece was taken out.

TABLE SHOWS RECORD FALL

Weather Bureau Tabulation Indicates That Torrential Rainfall Was General over Indiana.

NOTHING EVER LIKE IT BEFORE

Rushville Well Up in List of Cities With 9.65 Inches Rainfall in Four Days.

The United States weather station at Indianapolis has completed a table showing the rainfall throughout Indiana during the latter part of March, which was responsible for the flood. The table shows the number of inches of rainfall from March 23 to March 27, inclusive.

The table reveals that the rainfall was unprecedentedly heavy in nearly every part of the State. In only one or two places was the precipitation even comparatively light. The northern part of the State experienced much lighter rains than the central part and southern part, but even the northern part was deluged in spots. The lightest rainfall was at Laporte, which in the five days covered by the table, had only 1.65 inches. Whiting was next with 1.81 inches.

The heaviest rainfall reported was at Richmond, which had 11.15 inches. Logansport had 8.08 inches; Bluffton, 7.50 inches; Ft. Wayne, 5.36 inches; Huntington, 5.40 inches; Marion, 8.08 inches; Rochester, 5.16 inches; Monticello, 5.58 inches; Kokomo, 6.10 inches; Lafayette, 5.21 inches; Anderson, 6.20 inches; Bloomington, 9.20 inches; Cambridge City, 8.39 inches; Connersville, 8.98 inches; Crawfordsville, 8 inches; Farmland, 8.94 inches; Rushville, 9.65 inches; Greenfield, 7.28 inches; Indianapolis, 6.01 inches; Shelbyville, 7.11 inches; Butlerville, 9.27 inches; Columbus, 9.92 inches; French Lick, 6.52 inches; Terre Haute, 4.52 inches; Jeffersonville, 5.77 inches; Madison, 7.55 inches; Moores Hill, 6.92 inches; Paoli, 7.52 inches; Princeton, 7.53 inches; Seymour, 8.05 inches; Shoals, 9.06 inches; Vevay, 7.45 inches; Vincennes, 9.40 inches; Washington, 8.91 inches; Worthington, 7.59 inches.

It will be noticed from the foregoing list that practically every part of the State is covered and that the rainfall was torrential everywhere. Rushville felt that its rainfall was tremendous—and it was—but it was less than Richmond and the territory generally along the Whitewater got.

The 8.08 inches of water that fell at Marion explains the flood which swept down the Mississinewa and submerged Peru. The heaviest rainfall in any one day was at Columbus on March 25, seven inches of water falling there in twenty-four hours. The next heaviest was at Shoals, where 6.66 inches fell on March 25. Richmond got its heaviest rain on March 24—5.30 inches. The next day it got 4.17 inches more.

No such heavy precipitation has ever before been recorded in Indiana. The flood that has just passed was far the most severe and most general the State has ever known.

Fortunately there was no snow on the ground when the rain began on March 23, 1913. However, the ground was well soaked with moisture from previous rains and the runoff was necessarily rapid and perhaps nearly equal to what it would have been had the ground been frozen. A similar rainfall within a like period of time would, of course, cause a flood at any time of the year. However, the runoff would be much less rapid in midsummer, when the soil naturally would be in a comparatively dry state and much of it under cultivation, conditions favorable for an absorption of large quantities of moisture. At that season precipitation is less liable to be uniformly distributed or so heavy over extensive areas. While extremely heavy rainfalls have occurred in midsummer, they have usually been of comparatively short duration and extended over rather limited areas.

WHAT WILL A SOAKING DO TO YOUR NEW SPRING SUIT?

- What guarantee did you get with your new spring suit?
- Can you be sure it will look as well next month as it did when new?
- What will long, hard wear, do to its fit and shapeliness?
- Will the freshness and gloss of the fabric vanish if you get soaked in a sudden shower?

- If you don't know, then you didn't buy a Wooltex suit or coat. For if you buy Wooltex, you are safe on all these points and some others.

The pure wool fabric and the superb, hand-worked "soft" tailoring in Wooltex garments make them proof against wear and wet.
